But just as the 7.000 present were proclaiming him the victor Taplin hit Oceanic two stinging blows with the whip. He didn't wince under them. Instead he bounded forward and in a few strides was at the leader's threat latch. Knobbie fought on under a vigorous ride by Sande for a few yards and then quit while Oceanic went on by himself and passed the judges three lengths in front, cased up.

In the infield Louis Feustel, the young trainer who developed Man o' War, was yelling like a Comanche Indian. He rooted for Oceanic to win and he continued to yell at the ton of his voice after the finish. The crowd in the grandstand, who did not recognize him, thought he was some fan who had won a tremendous wager on the colt. But Taplin knew what the yelling was about. It was an order to let the colt run on as a trial for the Preakness. The jockey had momentarily forgotten the instructions in the excitement of the race and was pulling up when the trainer shouted to him.

After the race Feusel said he would whip the colt to Maryland early next week for the Preakness. He said Oceanic is much better over a distance of ground than he is as a sprinter, and that his only fault is slow breaking.

But he was a big colt and he was still growing—growing so fast that Feustel decided to stop him in August and turn him out until this Shows Plenty of Speed.

Early this spring at Mr. Riddle's farm at Berlin, Md., he showed more speed than ever and time and again stepped a half mile in 46 seconds. He came to Belmont Park a week ago and immediately startled the horsemen and elockers there by stepping a mile under restraint in 1:42, and coming back two days later and galloping the same distance in 1:40.

Before going to the post yesterday Feustel'said he would win if he broke well, and that if the distance were longer he would be a 1 to 10 shot.

Mr. Riddle made the trip from Philadelphia to see the colt in action, and before, during and after the race was more excited than his trainer. After the race he ran to the rail to congraturate fer the sace was more excited than his trainer. After the race he ran to the rail to congraturate fer the sace was more excited than his trainer. No horse ever was as good, and I don't think any horse ever will be as good."

Another for Riddle Stable.

Before Mr. Riddle and his friends had calmed down from the excitement caused by Oceanic's great race his old black gelding Dream of the Valley came out and won the Newtown Selling Stakes, the feature of the program, for him. This hig, faint hearted son of Watervale ran one of this best races and beat a big field in handy style. He won by four field in handy style. He won by four lengths, but he wasn't galloping. He was as straight as a string, for Ted Rice, who had the leg up on him, was taking no chances of him quitting and rode him hard all the way. Richard T. Dream of the Yalley is one of the finest looking thoroughbreds in training, and he has as much speed as any man's horse. But he has no courage and will quit as soon as any horse gets near him. He is a mean horse and will try to kick the brains out of any man, including his trainer. But he loves children.

Feustel and all of his men have to watch him every minute they are near his stall, but the trainer's three children. Louis, 9; Roy, 7, and Virginia, 5, can de anything with him. Jack Kearns has given Al H. Woods, the New York theatrical producer, hispersonal word that if there is a chance of staging a Dempsey-Carpentier bout in Europe, Woods can have the first opportunity to promote it. That is the extent of the option reported from Berlin, according to Kearns, who arrived in London to-night. He added that no money had been discussed nor details arranged, as everything depends upon Carpentier's showing against Ted Lewis and the demand in London or Paris for a return match.

Kearns expects Dempsey back from Paris on Saturday. He says the champion is more interested at present in dogs than in fighting. He went to Berlin principally to buy a police dog, for which he advertised, and the next morning the lobby of the hotel looked like a dog show. From about fifty Dempsey selected three and took them to Paris, whence he will ship them to America without bringing them here, owing to the strict British restrictions on the importation of dogs.

AMERICANS CABLE POLO INVITATIONS

Ask British, Argentinans and Hawatians to Play in National Championship.

What threatened to be a comparatively ready has indicated that she will not be prepared to challenge for the famous international Trophy before 1924, but that does not preciude the possibility of a representative team coming here after the British championships to play in our own title events. As a matter of fact the American polo officials are surprisingly confident that the invitation will be accepted by the English.

It is only natural, too, to suppose that the Argentinians will find it no trouble to stop off here on the way home from Great Britain to compete in our national championships. Only a year ago the Hawaiians expressed a desire to come to America this seasor for some of our leading tournaments and now that an invitation has beer cabled the chances of their coming are enhanced.

The open championship at Rumson and one or two other special events should therefore create an interest in pole that cannot but materially benefit the sport and expand its importance in the general picture of American events. The Polo Association announced yesterday that three castern teams of high caliber probably will play through the entire season unchanged, winding up with the national championships. The first of these teams will have two members of the American squad that brought the international cup back from England last summer. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., and Devereux Milburn; the second team will have two other internationalists— Louis E. Stoddard and J. Watson Webb; the third team will not rate quite so high but will have Malcolm Stevenson and C. C. Rumsey as the backbone of the squad.

The lineup of the three teams and their handicap ratings follow:

Will Play at Meadow Brook.

on June 3, the Meadow Brook Club tour-ney June 17 to July 8, Rockaway Hunt-ing Club open competition July 3 to 17 and others during July and August. The junior championships are scheduled for the Point Judith Polo Club July 31 to August 12.

Following the national championships at Rumson, the competing teams will be invited to go to Philadelphia for a series of events under the auspices of the Philadelphia-Bryn Mawr Clubs from September 13 to 23 and then to Meadow Brook for a special tournament from September 27 to October 7.
